Meeting of the Game and Fish Club.

When President Crawford came into our office yesterday to ask us to call attention to the meeting of the Sportsman's Club to-night, he was in such a hurry he couldn't think of the name of the association, and so, says he, "I wish you'd make a notice for to-morrow morning of a meeting of the Ram-rod and Fish-hook Society at the usual place." Now that illustrates, for the hundred millionth time, that brevity is the soul of wit. Suppose he had stopped to say that he had consulted with the gentlemen of the Quadruped, Ornithological and Ichthyological Society and that they, after mature deliberation, had resolved that it devolved upon them, and so forth and so on, in the interests of the true and legitimate sports of the field and stream, etc., etc., and to second the well directed efforts of the authors of the game law and the fish bill, they had deputed him to request us, &c., &c., &c. The probability is that we should have risen right up and killed him before he had half finished his oration, just as we have killed several emotional long-winded eloquentists already. All he needed to add was added; and that is, that the meeting will be held at the old corner, same as before—the President to stand the ale and obsequies, the Secretary to furnish the cigars, and the Treasurer to insist upon bearing half the expense.

The Rover murder case is on trial before Judge Wright at Reno.

Notes and Queries.

We note that that hole has been stopped up—that Fox-hole we mean. This shows the power of the press. Doubtless we could, if we were to try, stop all the coyote holes by the same process. A well timed drain or sewer is in process of construction from Alex Lepore's corner down to ward the eastern slope of the city. Doctor Butts is exhibiting his usual talent for engineering, by bawling the job. John G. Fox has received Harper's Weekly for next Summer (or some other time in the future, as is usual with the coming of the periodical press of the East), and we find some very clever things among the illustrations. Some little boot-blacks soliciting a job from a man emerging from a door way with a lot of luggage in his hands and on his back, is excellent. It is from the pencil of that thorough artist, Mr. T. W. Wood. A chubby Cupid and Psyche by Etty is a beautiful thing. Hall that's Left is the significant legend attached to a picture of a pair of eye-glasses of the Quaker Hall pattern. This is one of Nast's center shots. Also Harper's Magazine for May has come. It is an unusually fine number. Let's all hold off from buying any strawberries until the hucksters put down the prices. We Carsonites pay all the way from thirty to three hundred per cent more for reasonable goodies than they have to pay in Virginia City. Let's raise the standard of revolt and strike for the green graves of our sires, God and our native land! Also sparrowgrass. Mr. O. P. Willis is expected to return like a conquering hero, with emulcants, hyperphosphates and diuretics galore, this morning. He will be in good humor for attending to his business as a County Commissioner and auditing accounts; for he has just been to a wedding. So send in your bills. What made you sell your Overman?

THE DEATH OF MR. JOHN MESICK.

—By the Weekly Oregonian of April 7th we are informed as follows of the death of Mr. John Mesick—brother of Hons. R. S. and William Mesick, of Virginia City: This community was shocked and inexpressibly pained Wednesday morning on receiving the intelligence that Mr. John Mesick had been stricken down with apoplexy, and that no hopes were entertained of his recovery. At first his many friends were induced to believe that the report was exaggerated, but the sad news was speedily confirmed, and could no longer be a question of doubt. Mr. Mesick, who resides on the East side of West Park street, between Stark and Oak, arose yesterday morning at an early hour, soon after 6 o'clock, and began to shave himself. He finished, and very soon after complained of a terrible pain in his head. His wife, who was still in bed, became alarmed and rose up quickly to apply some remedies and render what assistance she could. He told her to take no trouble, as the pain would soon pass away. However, the pain continued to increase, and Mr. Mesick was compelled to lie down on the bed. Soon he sunk away into a condition of total unconsciousness, from which all efforts to arouse him, failed. Mrs. Mesick became frightened and notified the neighbors. Drs. Ghieslin and Wilson were hastily summoned and everything known to medical skill was done, but it was to no purpose. He remained in a deep stupor, breathing heavily until a quarter to 12, when he gently passed away to the unseen land. He never spoke after lying down. Deceased has held the responsible position of head book-keeper in the well-known mercantile house of L. Goldsmith & Co. for nine years. He was a most thorough, competent accountant and business gentleman, and enjoyed the unreserved confidence and esteem of his employers. Mr. Mesick was a native of Wayne county, New York, and at the time of his death was about 50 years of age. He leaves a young wife and an infant child, and a large circle of friends to mourn his sudden departure from the walks of life.

The American Man's freedom was but a brief, illusive and swiftly-fleeting vision. His imitation of Neal Dow was a failure; his attempt at playing the role of Father Matthew was a sad disappointment; his assumption of the part of John B. Gough was only a partial success. His liberty was a thing of but a few short hours—four, we think. He had no time to go to the city of the Great Salt Lake, but he did have ample time to get half over the great salt sea. He steered straight for a square meal but fetched up against the irresistible temptation of a glass of whiskey. By 8 he was happy, by 9 he was eloquent, and by 10 he was stopped in the midst of an untimely oration and marched off to his old quarters. He is there now.

Charley Derby has been nominated for Mayor of Virginia City upon the Republican ticket, and Ben Lackey for Chief of Police. Will waver any legitimate thing or sum—may our reputation as a prophet—that they will both be elected.

Brooks rallied famously yesterday. Bottom seems to have been reached and the reaction set in. This is a good deal better than the croakers predicted. The sales were very heavy and the general feeling very hopeful.

The number of employees in the Suro tunnel has been greatly decreased. The Chronicle of last evening says that this reduction will necessitate the stopping of a number of the machine drills, and will greatly diminish the average daily progress made in the tunnel. Before the reduction six machine drills were run all the time; now no more than four can be run. Again, the former force on each shift could be divided into two gangs when it became necessary to load up the cars, and while one gang rested the other could work steadily; now the whole shift will have to work at once when "mucking" is to be done, and suspended operations when requiring rest. The progress made in future will be materially lessened. Heretofore, since the introduction of Bar-leigh drills in the tunnel, the average daily progress has been ten feet; in future the daily progress will not be much more than five feet. Placing the distance from the header to the Comstock at 3,750 feet, 750 days would be required to drive the header that distance. The date of the completion of the tunnel will therefore not be so early as has been heretofore supposed.

THE WEEKLY GAZETTE.—The publishers of the Reno Evening Gazette have issued a weekly edition. It is a very handsome eight page paper, containing lots of reading matter and in all respects entitled to a handsome patronage.

The Reno Journal says that fish are dying by the ton in the Truckee. Is it not the females who are dying because they cannot get up the river to spawn?

Pottsville, Pa., April 16.—John Kehoe was this morning sentenced to be hung for the murder of F. W. S. Langdon in 1862.

Ashland, O., April 16.—A fire yesterday destroyed an entire block in this town. Loss, $60,000; insurance, $30,000.
